Interactive shows for all ages
in your school!

2024/25

- Interactive theatre shows for students of English aged 5-18
- Playing directly in your school or in a theatre near you
- Established in 1994
- Over 900 shows played in Europe every year
- Native English speakers and fluent speakers from other countries

Why theatre in English

- The language we learn in the classroom is often theoretical, while in real life, words are just part of a complicated live communication process. Theatre brings 'living' language to students in a way that normal classroom teaching can not.
- Live theatre creates genuine emotional reactions in the audience (as well as laughter). This motivates students to feel positive about learning the language. It also helps them learn specific elements of the language (grammar, phrases, etc.) in a memorable way.
- The shows are supported by teaching materials, which teachers can use before or after a show to link the theatre experience to their classroom teaching.

- Are the actors native speakers? Not only native speakers, but there will usually be one or two in the team.

Program of Shows

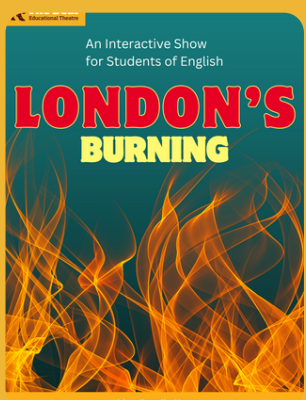

The History of England Part 1

Who built Stonehenge? What was so great about Alfred the Great? Out of the wives of Henry VIII who was killed, who was divorced, and who died naturally? This very entertaining show presents the main facts of English History in a fun and interactive way.

A Show Full of Lies

We all think that it is wrong to lie, but we all do it sometimes. In fact lying and working out if others are lying to us is a major part of human interaction. This show looks at different aspects of lying, from innocent white lies to harmful gaslighting.

London's Burning!

This show tells the story of The Great Fire of London with scenes, games, and a lot of interaction. Students learn the history of the fire while being encouraged to put themselves in the shoes of different characters from the story.
